An ONLINE One Week Online Faculty Development Program on "CROSS-CUTTING ISSUES & SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT: NEW AVENUES OF RESEARCH & RESEARCH METHODOLOGY IN COMMERCE, HUMANITIES & SCIENCE" Organized by Dept. of English Language & Literature of Marathwada Shikshan Prasarak Mandal's Rajmata Jijau College, Kille-Dharur, & Balbhim College, Beed, MS & Prahladrai Dalmia Lions College of Commerce and Economics Malad West Mumbai during: 24/09/2024 to 01/10/2024. Hon. Principal Dr. Gopal Kakade acted as the Chair Person of the inaugural session. The present FDP aims at making an in-depth exploration and understanding of the concept of cross-cutting issues & sustainable development through the new avenues of research & research methodology in humanities, commerce and science. Research is a virtual spring of knowledge. In the glocal age, where global thinking and local action is expected, research has become vital issue. These days in every academic community the numbers of research programmes, researchers, and research institutes have been increasing day by day and for that every nation is deliberately providing maximum grants. The National Knowledge Commission in its report by tracing out the relevance of research and library services recommended trained human resources for the development all disciplines and all-round development of our nation unto this last. In India a sufficient grants are made available through the organizations like CSIR, ICMR and UGC. International institutes like WHO, UNESCO UNICEF, World Bank etc. are giving their substantial financial, technical and other contribution regularly to research field. Hopkins Research Institute, TIFR, BARC, TISS, IIPS, IIT, OUCIP, Hyderabad are a notable few examples of premier research institutes. Apart from these institutes, in colleges and universities, there is marked emphasis on research-based and research-oriented syllabus and the number of the students admitting to such syllabi is continually increasing. Research in every discipline requires a systematic methodology. Research is an investigation directed to the discovery of some facts by careful study of a subject. More clearly, research is a careful investigation or inquiry especially through search for need facts in any branch of knowledge. Therefore the raisonne'tre of such a FDP does exist.

Objectives:

1. To have an in-depth exploration and understanding of the concept of cross-cutting issues & sustainable development through the new avenues of research & research methodology in humanities, commerce and science.

2. To introduce students, teachers and researchers a research methodology—the customs of a community of writers who greatly value scrupulous scholarship and the careful documentation, of recording, of research.
3. To provide students and teachers a comprehensive picture of how research papers, project reports, abstracts, dissertations, thesis, thesis statement etc. are created.
4. To know some of the educational and intellectual purposes of research.
5. To understand the concept of plagiarism and to know how to avoid unintentional plagiarism.
6. To give students practical advice on mechanism of research writing.
7. To introduce students the clear, consistent, and stylistically authoritative craft writing with the MLA style system, or style of documenting print and electronic sources.
8. To know how to cite chapter end notes and how to prepare a classified bibliography.
9. To make research students acquainted with the abbreviations that are useful in documentation and in certain other contexts.
10. To make research students familiar with government, semi-government and non-government and other funding agencies and their schemes and fellowships for research.
11. To promote research in the area of regional languages and literature of India.
12. To explore the possibilities of social applicability of research in Indian context.
